

Our Privacy Policy

Leverage Limited respects your privacy

In addition to the security of all business data, the protection of your privacy when personal data is processed is also an important concern for us, which we take fully into consideration in our business processes. It is also important to us that you are at all times aware of when we store data and how we use this data.

Data protection

We regard the protection of your personal data such as your name, address, telephone number and e-mail address and the responsible use of the information you entrust to us as especially important. This also includes data that accumulates in the background when you use the Internet.

If you are asked to give your personal details on individual web sites you will be informed of the intended purpose and, if necessary, you will be asked to give your consent.

Applicable law

Leverage Limited guarantees that your details will be treated confidentially in accordance with the applicable International data protection provisions.

Your visit to the Leverage Limited website / use of the data

Service data is not disclosed to third persons for either commercial or non-commercial purposes.

Contact

If you have any questions or suggestions concerning data protection or the processing of your personal data by Leverage Limited you can contact our information technology officer.

Leverage Limited

17th – Apr – 2014